

HÜRTGEN

A WORLD WAR II SHORT FILM

Dear Community Partner:

We never really knew our grandfather--Thomas W. Nycum. He was gone before we had the opportunity to talk to him about his service in the Second World War. However, as we came of age, stories of his kind nature and helpfulness were imparted to us. We learned of his hobbies, his eccentricities, and heard his jokes. His humorous sayings are still repeated at family gatherings. As a U.S. Army veteran, Tom witnessed some of the deadliest combat of the war. Similar to other members of the Greatest Generation, he did not speak of his experiences; it was simply too painful. Today his story and that of his generation live through us. As brothers, we have organized educational programs, explored European battlefields, and have completed exhaustive research--all to learn more about our grandfather and his division. This historical pilgrimage inspired us to write a short film about his service during the brutal Battle of the Hürtgen Forest in November 1944.

Hürtgen is bringing the story of our grandfather to the big screen. Using local scenery, actors, crew, and resources to achieve this goal, our film will focus on isolation and survival during one of the costliest battles of World War II. Like any movie, monetary contributions are necessary for all aspects of production. Our project is not funded by international investors or corporate studios but by people like yourself. We humbly turn to your generosity and ask that you become an official Community Partner for Hürtgen today. Throughout filming, marketing campaigns, regional premieres, and the national film festival circuit, your name or corporate emblem could be at the forefront of our movie's outreach. Additionally, you could be recognized on screen in every showing and online stream.

Joining us in this creative endeavor are Andrew and Catie Grant, talented producers who bring institutional knowledge of the film industry to the project. Cinematographer Mark Stitzer will add his signature style to the movie as well. A small legion of World War II historians and reenactors are standing by, bringing with them gritty authenticity and accuracy. Collectively, our team has over 50 years of professional filmmaking and storytelling experience. If you wish to help bring this meaningful tale to life, we invite you to join our team as a Community Partner today. Please review our incentive list below and visit our website to learn more about these opportunities. Thank you for making our project become a reality.

Sincerely,

Mark A. Frederick

COMPANY BACKGROUNDS

BRUSH MOUNTAIN MEDIA LLC was founded by emerging filmmaker Mark Frederick in 2018. This freelance enterprise offers a wide-variety of multimedia work to a diverse consumer base. Frederick tailors his expertise to fit the clients' needs and to fulfill their creative vision, whether it be a simple illustration or a complex video shoot. His services include videography, photography, graphic design, website building, and writing, among other technological tasks. In all of his historical projects, Frederick seeks to convey authenticity and drama in his cinematic depictions of the past.

THE FURIOUS FOURTH is a non-profit association that seeks to convey the personal stories, struggles and triumphs of the typical soldier who battled across Europe during World War II. This reenacting group typically portrays and interprets the 4th Infantry Division. Through education and public outreach, the organization strives to convey a profound human story that remains highly relevant. In an effort to expand upon this educational mission, The Furious Fourth is proud to partner with an independent film company, Brush Mountain Media LLC, in producing this short film.

PROJECT SYNOPSIS

Inspired by the harrowing story of director Mark Frederick's grandfather; Hürtgen is a tale of isolation and survival during one of the costliest battles of World War II. As the Allies push east into the heart of the Third Reich, American divisions enter a thickly-wooded and fiercely-defended wilderness on the Belgium-Germany border known as the Hürtgen Forest. Sergeant Thomas Nycum oversees vital communications in the 4th Infantry Division and witnesses a vicious cycle of violence that threatens to destroy his unit. Fear, loss, and bewilderment ultimately take a toll. Amid the longest battle in U.S. Army history, Nycum must find the strength to carry out his job. In Hürtgen, death seems to be the only certainty.

HISTORY OF HÜRTGEN

From September through December of 1944, American soldiers engaged in one of the cruelest battles in U.S. history. In their efforts to push into the heart of the Third Reich and end World War II in Western Europe by Christmas, Allied commanders hurled multiple American divisions into a dense forest on the Belgium-Germany border named Hürtgen. In a series of futile attempts to advance, GIs became bogged down in an endless array of ambushes, minefields, and bombardments that ultimately inflicted 35,000 casualties. Overshadowed by the even larger Battle of the Bulge that followed, the fighting in the Hürtgen Forest serves as a stark reminder of recklessness in the pursuit of victory. This film seeks to depict the forgotten trials and tribulations of the men who endured that struggle.

TEAM BIOGRAPHIES

- MARK FREDERICK (WRITER/DIRECTOR) has long been a student of history and cinema--two life passions he energetically blends together. He has written and directed orientation films for several historic landmarks and has created educational presentations for the National Park Service. Frederick also assisted producers at WPSU Penn State in creating a documentary entitled A Time to Heal. He currently operates his own multimedia business, Brush Mountain Media LLC, and works at the Railroaders Memorial Museum as their Director of Digital Outreach. Hürtgen is a passion project for him.
- JARED FREDERICK (EXECUTIVE PRODUCER) has a lifelong passion for American History. One of his many books include Dispatches of D-Day: A People's History of the Normandy Invasion. Prior to his career in academia, Frederick served as a park ranger at Gettysburg National Military Park and Harpers Ferry National Historical Park. He has appeared on AccuWeather, C-SPAN, PBS, and the Pennsylvania Cable Network. In 2019, he acted as a guest host on Turner Classic Movies for the channel's 25th anniversary. Frederick currently serves as an Instructor of History at Penn State Altoona.
- ANDREW GRANT (PRODUCER) is always exploring new ways to create and tell compelling stories. He has worked in television and video production for fifteen years, including long and short-form documentary work for both broadcast and digital media. Grant has worked for several production companies including Driftwood Productions in State College, PA and WNED-TV Buffalo/Toronto. He is currently the Lead Producer of Digital Media at WPSU-TV.
- CATIE GRANT (PRODUCER/ASSISTANT DIRECTOR) has fifteen years of experience in documentary, client-based media production, and branded content. She specializes in producing and directing, with an interest in cinematography and editing. Grant teaches courses at the Donald Bellisario College of Communications at Penn State University in video production and production management. Before teaching, she worked at WPSU-TV, where she specialized in producing and directing short-form documentaries. Grant's philosophy is that any story--no matter how big or how small--deserves to be told.
- MARK STITZER (DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY) has more than fifteen years of experience behind the camera as a cinematographer and editor for projects ranging from television spots to feature length documentaries and narrative films. His most recent credits include documentaries A Time to Heal as well as Water Blues: Green Solutions for which he was awarded an Emmy. Stitzer currently works as a videographer and editor at WPSU-TV.

FUNDS & GOALS

Filmmaking is an expensive process, especially when creating a period piece. Even though Hürtgen is a short film, the project still requires a substantial amount of funds. With an authentic story and historical accuracy in mind, there are several large factors to consider. The film requires a talented cast and crew. Compensation for gifted professionals is a vital ingredient for success. Film equipment for video, lighting, and sound are equally significant. Additional expenses include props, make-up, visual effects, insurance, and catering, among other production costs. Hürtgen* has raised around $35,000 so far, but total cost projections are at least $80,000. Funds will be raised through Community Partners and a 2021 crowd-funding campaign. Ultimately, these funds will provide the Hürtgen team with the resources it needs.

EDUCATIONAL OUTREACH

Hürtgen has a strong presence in the community through educational outreach. The project was highlighted by WJAC News as a result of the film's growing social media following. The work of Journalist Samantha York and Director Mark Frederick ultimately encouraged veterans and their families to share personal stories of war, in-person and online.

Frederick is available for presentations at museums, universities, and libraries, among other venues. His lecture largely explores his 2019 expedition to Hürtgen, but also provides a brief overview of the battle, the role his grandfather played in it, and the production of his upcoming film. If interested in booking, please review the Contact Information section.

After fundraising goals are met and the film's production is complete, Hürtgen will be available to a variety of classes at schools, universities, and other educational institutions. To accompany the film, teachers and professors will be given a lesson plan that will hopefully make the history of Hürtgen more mainstream in our classrooms and our society.
